

COURT TO RULE ON INJUNCTION WAR ON INJUNCTION

Gordon's Fight on Inn
Must Be Tested by Tribunal.

Injunction proceedings instituted by Maj. Peyton Gordon, District attorney, to prevent alleged continued violation of the prohibition laws, must stand the test of a final trial court, it was learned yesterday.

The injunction, issued Wednesday evening by Chief Justice McCoy against Harry E. Maynard, proprietor of the Tea Cup Inn, at 732 Fifteenth street northwest, prohibiting Maynard from violating the law and from removing from the premises any article used in violation of the law, is not as wide-spread as originally supposed.

A study of the petition reveals that Maynard's place of business can not be closed until District Attorney Gordon can prove in Equity Court that the government is entitled to a permanent injunction instead of a temporary one, such as was issued yesterday. However, in this respect, the government, in order to obtain a permanent injunction, will not need as strict proof as required to convict Maynard in the Police Court.

May's Fight Injunction.
Maynard's fight now is to attack the legal right of Chief Justice McCoy in issuing the temporary injunction, which is intended to prevent him from violating the law. The questions involved in such a proceeding have been threshed out in many of the State Supreme Courts, with victory for the defendants, as the State tribunals have ruled that a crime cannot be enjoined. Several Washington attorneys disagree on the subject, and if Maynard elects to fight the issuance of an injunction, which, if granted, will actually close the Fifteenth street premises, his case will be the first of its kind in this jurisdiction.

It is now known that the district attorney's office will not wait until the Maynard case is finally heard and disposed of before resorting to injunction proceedings against other alleged violators of the law, but will seek temporary injunctions for whatever place they think is violating the laws.

Place Twice Raided.
The charges of violating the prohibition laws against Maynard, resulting from the second raid on his place, went over yesterday until next Wednesday. The proceedings in Equity Court in which the final hearing for a permanent injunction will be held, are altogether independent of any action taken in the Police Court.

The owners of large stocks of wine, hops and other ingredients for home-made "hooch" will have an opportunity on January 28 to prove alleged illegal libel of their merchandise. It is expected, then, that the legality of that section of the prohibition laws calling for the libel of such goods will be attacked.

REFUSES TO HALT D. C. MILK PROBE

Subcommittee Heeds Protest
Of Producers Against Ending Investigation.

Investigation of the milk situation in the District by the subcommittee of the House District Committee will continue, it was announced last night.

Chairman Lampert of the subcommittee, has no intention of stopping the investigation, members of the committee said, and they are adverse to a settlement at this time. A meeting of the committee has been called for tomorrow.

Statements made before the committee yesterday to the effect that an agreement had been reached between the producers and the dealers brought a storm of protest from the attorneys of the milk industry, who declared that no agreement between the two factions had been reached, and there was no desire on the part of the producers to stop the investigation.

John S. Barbour, attorney for the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association, himself a producer, told the committee they had nothing to conceal and did not want the hearings to be discontinued. He followed a request of Attorney Charles W. Darr to stop the hearings on the ground that the dealers were now on friendly terms with individual producers and a continuation of the hearings might stir up ill feelings.

Henderson Fears Grock's Attitude

Former Senator Asks District Attorney for Protection.

Former United States Senator Charles B. Henderson, of Nevada, whom Charles A. Grock admitted shooting in the arm on Monday last at the Senate office building, applied to District Attorney Peyton Gordon yesterday for protection against what he believed to be a menacing attitude on the part of Grock, following the conviction of the latter on Wednesday of charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and the killing of a man.

Grock is at liberty under $2,000 bond, pending disposal of a motion for a new trial. Suspicious tales of phone conversations and the alleged attempt to interview him by two men, posing as reporters, have caused Henderson to think that Grock was still seeking vengeance.

DENIES CONGRESS IS CAUSING DELAY

Senator Harrison Hints Move
To Oust Federal Reorganization Committee.

Threats of a resolution to oust the joint committee on the reorganization of the Federal government unless the Republican members call a meeting soon and present a reorganization plan were made in the Senate yesterday by Democratic leaders.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, a member of the committee, brought up the subject by indignantly denying published statements that opposition in Congress was blocking the administration's reorganization program. He charged that the delay was entirely the fault of the administration, and told the Senate that the joint committee had never had a meeting since it met to organize. He gave notice that "if something is not done very soon, I shall offer a motion to discharge the committee so that another one may be appointed."

Senator Smoot, of Utah, a Republican member of the committee, informed the Senate that when the committee was first organized, Walter Brown, of Toledo, representing President Harding, was appointed chairman and empowered to prepare a plan of reorganization. The job allotted to Mr. Brown was enough to keep him busy a long while and the committee has been waiting to hear from him ever since, he said. Several serious disagreements have arisen in the administrative branches over proposed changes and these have added to the delay, Senator Smoot explained. He added that he thought the powers conferred upon Mr. Brown were "rather sweeping."

"The insinuation that evidently came from the White House that Congress is blocking the plans of President Harding in this great reorganization scheme is absolutely and utterly false," said Senator Harrison. "The committee has not had a meeting since April 6. The delay has been caused by some of the statements of the committee, instead of issuing statements to the contrary creating the impression that this department will be co-ordinated by the committee. In fact, the committee should call the members together and allow the members representing the House and Senate to begin their work."

Brady to Push Arbuckle Fight

State Lawyer Undismayed
By Hostile Testimony of Zey Prevost.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—"We will go through with the Arbuckle trial to the bitter end, no matter what it may be," declared District Attorney Brady tonight after a conference with his staff, following the testimony of Zey Prevost, the State's "boomerang" witness, on the testimony given under oath before that body by Zey Prevost.

"Now Miss Prevost says she 'does not remember' and her whole attitude is distinctly hostile," he said. "Anyone in the courtroom could see what had happened to her testimony. It was obvious. It is the business of the jury to judge the testimony of a witness and to judge his or her manner of testifying, and we are going to put the case squarely up to the jury. That is the most we can do."

Admits He Posed As Revenue Man

Former Marine Wore Badge
Inscribed With "Hootch
Inspector, No. 23."

With nothing to do and all day to do it in, George W. Schindler, of Butte, Mont., who isjourning in Washington after a dishonorable discharge from the Marine Corps, lided away his time in such a foolish manner that he barely escaped jail.

It was testified in Police Court yesterday, when Schindler was arraigned for carrying a blackjack, that he entered a Ninth street clothing store on January 16, threw open his coat, and displayed a badge upon which was inscribed "Hootch Inspector, No. 23."

"Then, according to witnesses, he pulled out a blackjack and flourished it." "This here blackjack," he is alleged to have said, "comes in mighty handy when it is necessary to crack a guy's skull. The other day in the Southwest I had to nearly bump off a guy for getting fresh when I showed my badge. I'm working for the Bureau of Internal Revenue."

When arraigned in court Schindler pleaded guilty and admitted that he had been cashiered by the Marine Corps in San Donato, a court suspended a sentence of six months in jail and placed him on probation.

Count Admits Murder Plot

Kisses Mother's Hand and Confesses Conspiracy to
"Save His Soul."

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Count Heinrich Schlieffen entered the Goritz criminal court today, kissed his mother's hand and made one of the most sensational confessions ever heard in a German court, "to save his soul," he said.

Count Heinrich, with his mother, Countess Eleanor, and his brother, Count Ziegfried, a member of one of the most noble families in Germany and a relative of the former chief of staff of the German army, is accused of attempting to murder Count George George Schlieffen, a cousin, so he could inherit the latter's estate of millions.

Count Heinrich told the court that his mother was innocent and that he was guilty. He said he had four plans in view for murdering Count William and that his final decision was to employ a band of four Communists to engineer an "uprising" at Schlieffenberg Castle in which his cousin was to have been disposed of. Dynamite intended for this adventure was exhibited in the court room. However, Count Heinrich employed a grocer who gave the plot away.

Ten special guards in charge of the prisoners are en route to prison.

DISTRICT UTILITIES AGENTS TO MEET MARYLAND BOARD

Arrangements Between
Capital and Suburbs
To Be Discussed.

Invitation was extended yesterday to the Maryland Public Service Commission by the District Public Utilities Commission to come here and confer on the arrangements existing between District public utilities companies and those in the Maryland suburbs of Washington. Gas, street car service, electricity and water supply will be considered.

One of the questions requiring solution is the method to be used in measuring the amount of gas sold by the Washington Gas Light Company to the suburban companies. At present the gas is measured at the individual meters and the total submitted with an increase of 7 per cent to cover loss. It has been suggested that the gas be measured where the mains cross the District line.

Telephone Hearing Today.
Walter C. Allen, executive secretary to the Public Utilities Commission, was instructed to write the Maryland commission and arrange an early date. The original suggestion for a conference came from Maryland.

A public hearing on the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, its charges and services, has been scheduled for 10 o'clock today in the board room of the District Building. All matters pertaining to the city's telephone service will be considered, and the Commission is then expected to prepare a schedule of rates and charges for the coming year. C. T. Clagett, district manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, states that he will ask for a continuance of the present rates and in view of the fact that the present return is 5.7 per cent on the investment, he does not believe there will be a cut.

To Consider Bus Bonding.
The question of bonding bus companies who operate in the District in order that persons bringing suit can be assured protection, also will come up for a public hearing before the Public Utilities Commission on February 6. The announcement sent out yesterday by Secretary Allen states that the owner or operator of such public service buses shall have bond in the sum of $10,000 for each car carrying seven passengers or less, and $1,000 for each additional seat. Any person suffering damage and receiving judgment against the bus company can be paid out of this bond.

The Commission will also consider the advisability of accepting indemnity insurance policies in lieu of the bonds. The proposal to bond bus lines has been under consideration for some time, both by the District government and by Congress.

The mash was destroyed, while the liquor and still were taken to the station house.

Johnson gave his age as 52 years. He was charged with illegal manufacturing and selling of liquor and having a still. He was released later on bond. The raiding party consisted of Precinct Detective Waldron, Sgt. Sheets and a squad of policemen.

DIGNITARIES OF CONFERENCE PORTRAYED IN NOVEL PASTELS

Display at Shoreham By Youthful Peruvian
Oddly Interesting.

An exhibition of pastel portraits, heads of the great figures of the arms conference, done by Alberto Barretto, a young Peruvian, is on display in the parlors of the Shoreham Hotel.

There are fourteen pictures in all, not one done from life. Executed in New York during the Christmas season, the likenesses and characteristics were gleaned from the press. Only in two, the canvases of Balfour and Harding, does the artist fail to catch the essential note of his subject.

For gaining of the spirit of the man and his race, the portraits are drawn on paper of a color suggestive in some way of the man. Balfour is done in red and black, even to his necktie, and the lights are a curiously effective blue. Balfour is represented on white background, "because the English character is pale in every way," according to Barretto.

In a great many of the pictures the color of the background is used as the coloring of the countenance, and lighted with shadows of a contrasting color. Particularly effective is the use of the background in the portrait of Senator Schanzler, of the Italian delegation. It is done on green paper, and the portrait itself is executed in three darker tones of green, with a contrasting line.

Particularly notable are the long, sure strokes of the crayon, that make for a life-like effect with practically no detail. Sir Robert Borden's portrait is very human. "They say the sun of Canada is so wonderful," explained the artist, "and the ruddy coloring used for the highlights of the Canadian's countenance, Dr. Lian, of the Chinese delegation."

Details Strikingly Absent.
The entire exhibition shows a masterful understanding of line and lighting, and a boldness that just stops short of being crude. The faces are vigorous and forceful, the technique broad and effective. The use of the pastel is novel and original, and very agreeable.

Barretto, strangely, has had no training whatever. He is a man of only 24 years, born in Lima, Peru, and came to America but four years ago. It is very recently that he took art for a vocation as well as an avocation, and the exhibition at the Shoreham, which will be there for the remainder of the week and part of next week, is his first. It is sponsored by the Ambassador from Peru, Federico Peset.

The model of the young artist is J. Malaga Gernet, director of art of La Nacion in Buenos Aires, whose style he is attempting to emulate.

Mr. Hughes has been caught extraordinarily well, on a black sheet to contrast with his white hair. The light is entirely on the left side of the face, and the other side is not even outlined, but its art is definite. Best of the exhibition is a portrait of Prince Sastri of India. In the picture, Barretto has caught the intense seriousness of the Prince, together with an unusually good likeness and a romantic sweep to the whole. It is a fine and sympathetic piece of work, done with the velvety texture that pastels produce in skilled hands. An interesting note is the fact that the Prince's tie is just a little crooked, indicating his lack of experience with the European habitment.

The entire exhibition shows a masterful understanding of line and lighting, and a boldness that just stops short of being crude. The faces are vigorous and forceful, the technique broad and effective. The use of the pastel is novel and original, and very agreeable.
